Web3 Onboarding Problem: Wallets

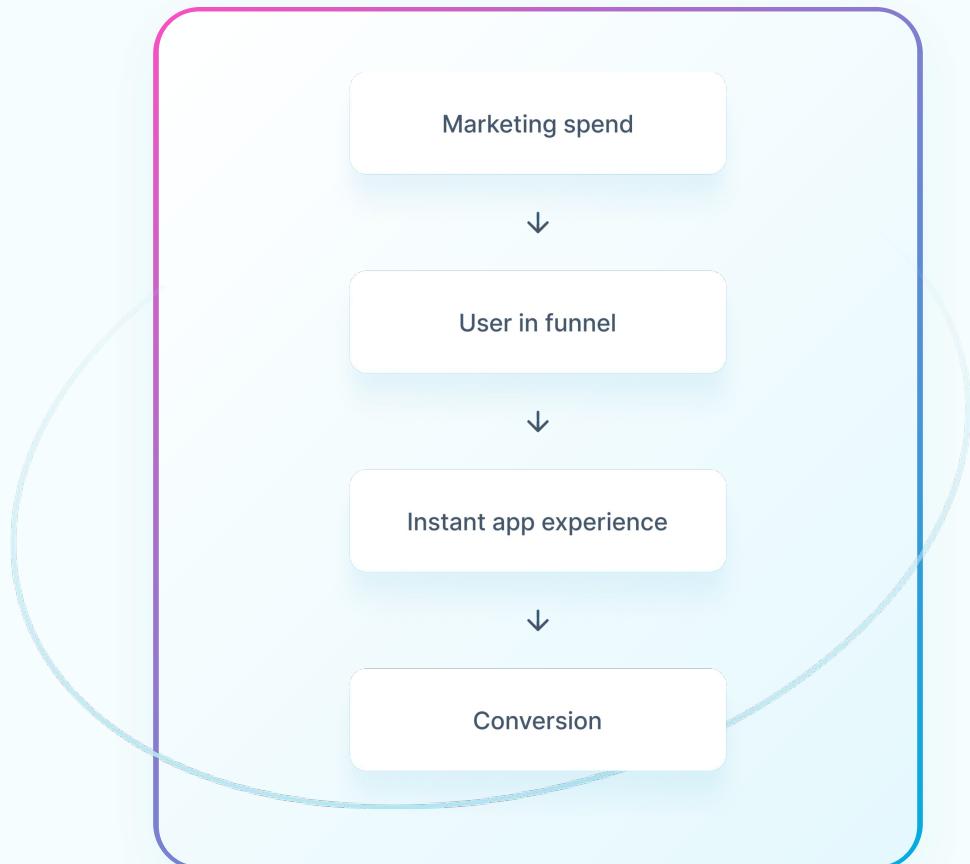

Why is it a problem?

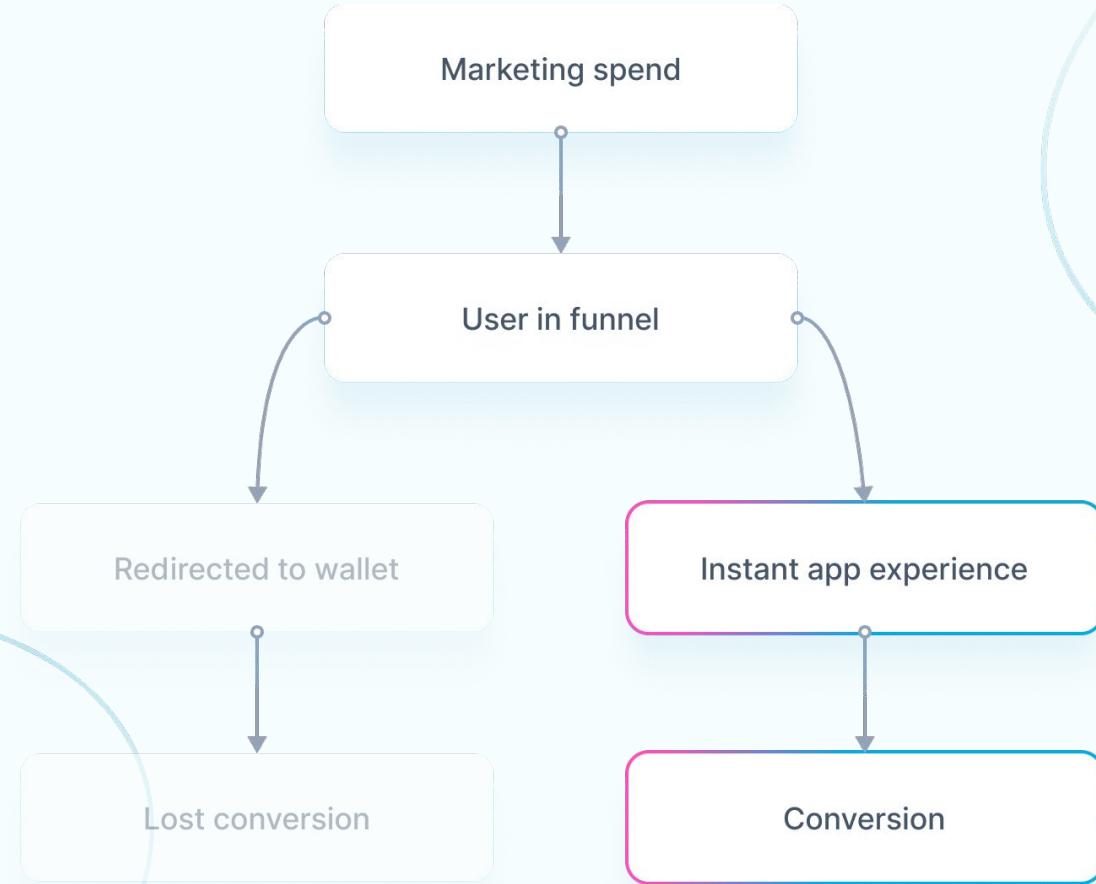

- Lost conversions, users & money
 - No wallet = high drop offs
 - No way to optimize funnel
- Custodial solutions and centralization are not the answer
- FOMO, KOLs and influencers are not fixing the real UX issue
- It's a funnel problem!

The Keypom Solution

- Increase conversions
 - Push the wallet setup to later
 - Control the onboarding funnel
 - Instant experience first
- Users invest time & love app
 - Want to set up wallet after
 - Apps make money
- No middleman, real wallets
 - Apps keep their audience
 - Users keep their data
- Control the user funnel

Pure crypto

What is the Keypom Protocol?

- Keys to prepaid on-chain experiences
- Smart contract trial accounts
 - Instantly use app with pre-paid gas
 - Apps can limit contracts, methods, amounts and time
 - Transparent and fair repayment conditions
- Linear experiences
 - e.g. (1) RSVP, (2) ticket scan, (3) claim POAP
- FIAT Bank & Credit Card friendly
 - Funds only used for app utility e.g. vote in DAO
 - Cancel and retrieve all funds not spent to date (clawback)
- Keypom JS SDK
 - Get started with Web3 with little to no knowledge

GTM: Web2 → Web3

- Transition simplified for Web2 teams
 - Distribution of keys via links (i.e. a link drop)
 - Instantly put user in app experience and developers codebase
 - Keypom JS SDK + a few lines of code
- Link distribution integrates perfectly with Web2:
 - Funnels & Optimization
 - Marketing campaigns
 - Referral programs
 - Analytics
 - ...

Web2 teams can focus on their app and increasing conversions

Multichain approach: 2 phases

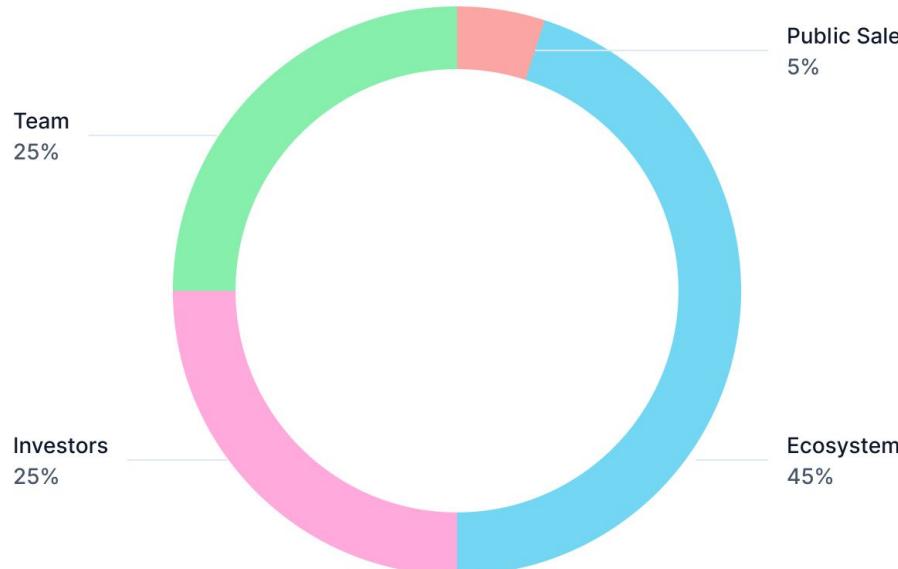

- Experiences on NEAR → Asset claim on destination chain
 - Experience ends with Rainbow Bridge TX on NEAR
 - User creates wallet on dest. chain
 - Validate experience and mint
- Native trial experiences and accounts
 - Account abstraction via TSS and MPC partners (Intu)
 - GTM target: most active wallet chains and L2s
 - Keypom SDK multichain
